NF SEND VAUXHALL VOTERS THE MESSAGE BLACK SEPARATISTS BACK FRONT CANDIDATE

THE VAUXHALL parliamentary by-election held on the 15th June 1989 will come to be seen as a watershed in the history of the National Front's political development.

Not because our vote was anything out of the ordinary, for it wasn't. Nor because it has convinced us that there is a parliamentary road to national revolution, for it hasn't.

The Establishment will always move the goalposts whenever the underdog shows any sign of being likely to score, as the Green Party is about to discover to its cost.

Chief Elder of the Pan-African Inter-National (PAIN). But we were able to follow up with a special leaflet aimed exclusively at Black voters, and endorsed by Akkebala and by Robert Brock of the Self-Determination Committee.

This special leaflet was handed out would certainly have included an effort to reach these communities too. Asian language leaflets along the lines of the Black leaflet also need to be considered for the future.

The other important need was to consolidate our support among regular purchasers of National Front News within the constituency. Known supporters and likely voters were visited personally and encouraged to come out and put their cross where it counted. Our familiarity with such people is the fruit of many years of hard work by a handful of dedicated activists - other units take note.

The Vauxhall campaign was but a first attempt, the putting into practise of a strategy still very much in an embryonic stage of development. It was conducted at very short notice, and on a shoestring.

The final vote achieved was not impressive, we did not expect it to be. Neither was it important. What was important was the imparting of the message - a new message, a positive message. The next campaign will continue where Vauxhall left off.

WITH GARVEY FOR THE NEW AFRICA

THE MEDIA DOES NOT WANT YOU TO KNOW THE TRUTH

If there was one thing that the media does not want you to know, it is the truth. The truth is that the National Front is a "hate" group, and that it is a threat to the stability of the country. The media does not want you to know this because it would cause panic and confusion among the public.

After the 1988 election, the members of the Official National Front were in a state of shock. They had been told that they were a "hate" group, and that they were a threat to the stability of the country. They had been told that they were a "hate" group, and that they were a threat to the stability of the country.

MANHOLDING DIVERSITY IS A BUILT-IN BURDEN

The Official National Front is a "hate" group, and it is a threat to the stability of the country. The media does not want you to know this because it would cause panic and confusion among the public.

CONGRATULATE THE NEW AFRICAN NATION

It is a great day for the people of the world. A new nation has been born, and it is a nation that is dedicated to the principles of justice and equality.

PARLIAMENT is an undemocratic farce. The National Front is committed to the principle of Popular Rule, that is true people's democracy, whereby decisions are taken by the people and implemented by delegates elected by the people. The "representation" concept is a negation of democracy.

Why then did we contest the parliamentary election in Vauxhall? Why did the National Front consent to take part in this charade, designed as are all parliamentary elections to legitimise the false principle of dictatorship by party over people, of party over nation? Were we not, by doing so, compromising our own principles?

The argument has its strengths, though one must examine the reason why candidates - any candidates - fight elections, and what they set out to achieve. At Vauxhall there were fourteen candidates, only one of whom had any realistic expectation of winning. Two others contested the seat as a matter of obligation, being the chosen representatives of the other Establishment parties, whilst a fourth sought to measure the level of the very temporary success which his party is presently being permitted to enjoy. As for the other ten, each had his own reasons for contesting the election, though the possibility of winning could not have been a consideration in the decision of any of them to stand.

So it was that the National Front fought Vauxhall for its own very special reasons, and in no way should any such reasons suggest an endorsement of the hoax of representation.

First of all there is the need for our revolutionary message to be heard by the people. For too long our enemies have misrepresented us as fire-breathing, intolerant, race-hating bigots and, due to our lack of resources, they have been largely allowed to go unanswered. Now, courtesy of the rules of electoral procedure (which are principally designed to make life easier for the Establishment parties) we were able to have an election address delivered free of charge to over 40,000 households. The System may not have liked the fact, but it had no choice if it was to preserve the "democratic" credentials with which it subverts society in the West.

The need for us to impart our true message to the people of Vauxhall was made far greater by the intervention of a candidate from the racist Flag group, which fraudulently uses the name "National Front" under which to peddle its disgusting and poisonous propaganda; propaganda which gives the Establishment the "justification" it requires to portray the NF in the way that it does.

Had these people had the moral courage and honesty to trade under a name of their own rather than hanging on to our coat-tails we may have decided against participating in the election. As it was, the prospect of an election address being sent out by these bigots and inadequates under the name of the National Front was not one which was easy to bear, and so it became all the more important that people learn what it was that the NF really stood for.

The other major consideration was the need to train our young cadre of activists in the art of fighting elections, preparing them for the event of a possible future improvement in external circumstances which may facilitate a desire for us to enter the electoral fray at any given time.

Coupled with the opportunity to develop an already expanding unit, and to promote links with Black separatists in one of the country's most multi-racial areas, our participation in the Vauxhall by-election was not only justifiable, but extremely necessary.

to Blacks during a paper sale at East Street market. Although not quite in the constituency, the market is known to attract a large number of people from all over South London, including Vauxhall. Additionally, as an experiment, a small number of leaflets were sent specifically to Blacks living in the constituency. In both cases the response was encouraging. Lack of time and resources prevented us from reaching all but a tiny proportion of Vauxhall's Black population, but the lesson has most certainly been learnt for the future.

As well as the non-European communities, it was known to us that Vauxhall included a considerable number of Italians and Spaniards. The social base and outlook of these communities has much in common with our position, and they hold special interests which an organization such as ours should seek to address, so literature was produced in Spanish and Italian and circulated amongst these groups. Other identifiable groups of Europeans which exist in Vauxhall in large numbers include Greeks, Poles and Maltese, and a longer and more thorough campaign

HOME AFFAIRS, ANALYSIS & COMMENT

DETTA STAR VI FÖR

NATIONELL FRIHET

Skandinavien är en familj av nationer, Sverige, Norge, Island, Finland och Island. Förenade genom blod och historia. Alla nationernas folk har en omistlig rätt till självbestämmande och att bevara deras inhemska kultur och traditioner.

SEPRATION MELLAN RASERNA

Rasen är den absolut viktigaste faktorn i nationalitetens fråga. Rasblandade samhällen kan inte bygga en nation och är därför ostabil. Ingen ras är "överlägsen" någon annan, men de är alla olika. Rasblandningen förstör alla raser. Humane återflyttning är bättre för alla än ändlös förtryck och rasbråk.

SOCIAL RÄTTVISA

Nationen är en stor familj. Varje medlem av vår nationella familj har sin absoluta rätt att på nationens bekostnad få vård ung, sjuk eller gammal. Det måste vara samma möjligheten för alla, men inga inkomstprivilegier för någon.

VÄLFÖRDELAD EGENDOM

Den realistiska möjligheten att äga ens eget hem och arbetsplats är en rättighet för hela vårt folk. Direkt ägande av produktionsmedlen och distributionen är nödvändigt för individuell frihet, för familjens stabilitet och för det bästa nyttjande av våra nationella resurser.

OMDÖME INOM FINANSERNA

Rättigheterna att upprätthålla krediterna som ekonomin behöver måste tillhöra folkets regering. Bankerna som har tillskansat sig dessa rättigheter, måste bli berövade deras rättvisa vinst och makt. Det nationella skuldar är uppbyggt på ocker och måste förkastas.

RESPEKTERA NATUREN

Vi har alla ett förtroende till kommande generationer, det är miljön. Föreningen av mark, hav, och luft, och arvsanlagens felaktiga delning på grund av radioaktivstrålning är ett svek mot detta förtroende.

Parlamentaristiskt representantsskap är en bluff. Partistyre är en täckmantel för kapitalintressenternas och mediabossarnas diktatur. Statens ledning måste vara i folkets egna händer, genom ny teknisk information och i valet av fullmäktige som ska frambära deras önskemål. Makter måste övergå till den lägsta nivån som möjligt.

DET BEVAPNADE FOLKET

Friheten förusett av dessa principer måste bli försvarad med hjälp av beväpnad neutralitet, dvs. det rustade nationalgardet tillsammans med hela den vuxna befolkningen. Makt, rikedom och vapen i folkets händer!

REVOLUTION INGEN REFORM

Dessa förändringar kan inte bli framkallade med småförändringar inom systemet, eller med beroende av systemets egna institutioner, t.ex. parlamentet, skolorna eller domstolarna. De kan endast uppstå ur en nationell revolution. Denna revolution måste börja i individens hjärta, sedan spridas med hjälp av deras exempel att involvera hela samhällen i en revolutionär struktur sådan som alternativa kommunfullmäktiges och skolor, grannskapspatruller, och olika självhjälpsgrupper. En gång för alla upphör vi med att vara beroende av den gamla statens institutioner, det kommer att lösas åt sidan.

DEN TREDJE VÄGEN

Utvidgningen av dessa ideer från nation till nation visar att en ny maktfaktor börjar växa i världen inför det tjugonde århundradet. Lämna bakom sig den otruksamma hatet av Kapitalism och Kommunism, denna Tredje Väg erbjuder sig en verklig framtid för hela vårt folk. Vi manar alla de som instämmer med dessa principer att förena sig med oss som slåss för att bygga upp den Nationella Fronten - framtidens förelse.

THE SILENT SCREAM

IN recent years the Third Positionists of the National Front have been declaring that the struggle in which we are involved is not so much political as moral and spiritual.

For it stands to reason that if an Individual and a Society do not have the correct attitude to Life in a general sense there can only result disintegration and decay.

That the British Family of Nations is disintegrating rapidly is disputed by very few people. The evidence is there for all to see, yet no one has yet realized that the fundamental root of all the problems that afflict our peoples - no matter how unconnected they may seem - is the lack of a spiritual conception of life. It is this lack of spirituality and of moral absolutes which is engulfing these islands - once a haven of Saints and Scholars - in a tidal wave of Evil and Filth.

MASS MURDER

The purported leaders of this country like to argue that this is a civilized country, that it has standards, but the recently announced abortion figures show this to be a grotesque lie.

According to Roger Freeman, the Junior Health Minister, there have been an incredible 2,949,578 induced abortions since 1968 in these islands. In other words, there has been mass murder on a scale equivalent to killing almost half the population of London. That figure should shock and anger you, the reader. If it doesn't, it can only indicate that you are losing your sensitivity to the very issues of Life and Death.

What makes this figure all the more repulsive is the fact a mere 130 were carried out on the grounds that "it was necessary to save the pregnant woman's life in an emergency." This law, guided by the abortionist murderer, David Steel, was "sold" to the people by insisting upon exceptional circumstances - rape, threats to the mother's life and so on. The result has been a harvest of butchery.

FIGHT BACK!

How many of those aborted children could have given comfort to those unhappy couples, desperate to adopt? How many of those unborn children could have enriched our society with their talents and cares? We shall never know.

But it falls to us to ensure that the opposition to this legalized massacre grows quickly, and succeeds in saving the lives of our young people.

There are many ways to do this. We must become acquainted with the complete anti-abortion case, so that lies like "threats to the mother's life" do not take in the unsuspecting.

We can join those societies dedicated to the preservation of life, and work to further their cause, for it is our cause too. We can also distribute information leaflets.

As reported in a recent issue of NF News, Oldham NF have produced an excellent anti-abortion leaflet called: "Today My Mother Killed Me." They will be happy to send you a supply of leaflets if you send them stamps or a few pounds towards the costs of their production. Such leaflets need to be left in doctors' surgeries, hospitals, libraries and clinics.

Your leaving a leaflet could be the difference between a child falling prey to the scapel of a murderer, and a child growing up giving comfort to a family, community and nation.

For samples of Oldham NF's leaflet, send three 14p stamps by recorded delivery (22p) to: Oldham NF, P.O. Box 123, Oldham, OL1 2HB.

Remember: Every life we save gives our country hope, whilst every one we lose brings us that bit closer to total and irremedial collapse. We all have a duty in this respect. Let us perform it wholeheartedly and effectively.

THIRD WAY FOR BRITAIN'S WORKERS

THREE recent initiatives by British workers demonstrate the flexibility and effectiveness of workers' co-operatives.

* October 1988 witnessed the formation of Wear Fisherman's Association, a 40 strong marketing co-op established to preserve and develop the Sunderland and Seaham fishing industry, despite new rules by Common Market bureaucrats preventing the men from retailing fish in quayside cabins.

* The end of last year also saw the Buzz Co-operative take to the streets of Harlow, Buzz is a bus co-op that emerged from the privatisation of the State-owned National Bus Company and a subsequent strike against an oppressive new employer, a property developer in Leeds. Despite opposition from the T.G.W.U. the workers set up their own "hail and ride" service with Buzz. The local people appreciate the new friendly and reliable service. A similarly successful bus co-operative called People's Provincial has operated for several years in Gosport, Hampshire.

* CDX is a new specialist compact-disc retail outlet, run as a co-operative venture in Walsall. With C.D. sales for 1988 thought to be around £200 million the shop's future looks promising. CDX aim for a high standard of service, coupled with realistic prices.

The co-operative enterprise provides a sane alternative to the monopolies of casino-capitalism and State Socialism, where those who could so easily have been exploited by shareholders or State officials now find Social Justice.

Co-ops are the Third Way forward for our family of nations, and only the NF can secure their future.

MORE EVIDENCE FOR WITHDRAWAL

AS the forces of Capitalism attempt to whip up enthusiasm for the Single European Market of 1992, the evidence for Britain leaving the Common Market increases daily.

A recent agreement between the E.E.C. bureaucrats and the Red dictatorship in Moscow will allow the U.S.S.R. to dump textiles in the U.K. at artificially reduced prices. Such an action will finally kill off our remaining mills, as Eastern bloc shoe imports have already done in another area of manufacturing.

The arrival of 1992, however, will reduce even further the capacity of our nations to restrict imports, as Turkey wisely did recently. Company mergers are already producing huge multi-national firms, whose only loyalty is to their profits.

The picture emerging in Europe is one of bland uniformity, as small business concerns and products, together with small organic farms, are driven to the wall by 'mega-brands' and vast multi-national companies exploiting our earth for all it's got.

And if all that was not enough the E.E.C. is demanding changes in quarantine regulations as part of the harmonization of customs control. The result, which will be made far worse by that environmental hazard the Channel Tunnel, will undoubtedly be the arrival and spread of rabies throughout our islands.

Only one thing can save our homeland: withdrawal!

DISCLAIMER

THE National Directorate of the National Front wishes to make it clear that the Flag and Vanguard are not National Front publications. They do not reflect NF policy or strategy and do not speak for the National Front.

They are produced by a small clique of reactionaries, thieves and drunks, expelled from the NF in 1986. Officials are reminded that both publications and their editors are proscribed. Members of the public are warned that the NF cannot be held responsible for money lost on subscriptions to the Flag and Vanguard when they cease publication.

THE CHANGING FACE OF BRITAIN'S POLICE

ARMED police squads are now patrolling Britain's biggest cities and motorways 24 hours a day.

At least five police forces including the Metropolitan Police, West Midlands, West Yorkshire and Northumberland have armed patrols. And another seven, including Merseyside, Avon and Somerset and Surrey, are considering them.

The squads consist of two officers in a 2.8 litre Ford Sierra or a 3 litre Vauxhall Senator, capable of speeds up to 140mph.

And hidden between the back seat of the car and the boot is a steel weapons box which can only be opened with two keys, one of which is carried by each officer. It contains pump action shotguns and two Smith and Wesson .38m pistols.

The move has been strongly encouraged by the government, which is desperate to be seen to be doing something about rising violent crime, and to "tool up" for the inevitable explosions of renewed violence in the multi-racial inner cities which has been simmering for some time. And there are also fears that the next wave of riots will spread to previously unaffected White areas where the social deprivation suffered by whole communities has become unbearable.

But many senior police officers are opposed to the move. In the words of one CID chief who opposes the armed cars:

"It is not unusual for police cars to be stolen. I can foresee a situation where a firearms car is hijacked along with its crew. It frightens me to death."

There is no doubt that, far from curbing trouble, the move will in fact add another twist to the spiral of violence which now afflicts our nations. Something has to be done, but this move towards a militarised police force will only make matters much worse than at present.

SOLUTIONS

There is no point trying to level the blame for the tension and outbreaks of violence in the inner cities on the immigrant communities. Neither is there any point trying to hide behind the excuse of social deprivation in these communities, although it does play its part. The main reason why, so far, it has always been Black youth taking to the streets is simply because they are fundamentally alienated from European society. They will never be able to accept their existence in a White dominated society and Europeans will never accept them in our midst.

The only way to defuse the growing time-bomb of chaos is to provide the alienated immigrant populations with the opportunity to work out their own destiny in their ancestral lands by instituting a phased programme of financially assisted repatriation.

And the wider problem of rising violent crime can only be dealt with in two ways: civil law and people's attitudes must change to reflect the Moral Law; and real community participation must be encouraged.

COMMUNITY STRUCTURES

It should be evident that for punishment to be effective and to mean anything at all, it must fit the crime. In the short term the community must demand that bleeding heart, feeble minded judges who give suspended sentences to child molesters and rapists and a couple of years in open prisons to murderers should be sacked. Child molesters, rapists and murders should know that they face the rope.

Eventually, the judicial system must be changed to one that increases the would face the rope.

MORAL EDUCATION

But the most important and far reaching change in society must come in its moral foundation. The epidemic of horrific crimes that we are experiencing and those that have become endemic, such as abortion, because of their acceptance by a perverted civil law are the result of a sickness of soul that is poisoning our society.

So the most significant change in society must take place in the home and the schools. Great emphasis must be laid upon moral education and spiritual training. Just Society can only exist when it is based upon Moral Law.

This will also determine social and economic relations throughout our family of nations. It is inevitable that a society which holds up as its ideal the individual who makes a fortune at the expense of everyone and everything around him, will breed an ethos of selfishness. And a system which teaches that material goods are the ultimate good, can hardly be surprised when the "have hots" turn to crime in order to become "haves".

The undisciplined selfishness of today's sick liberal ethos can only be combatted by the spiritual re-awakening of our people. When the Moral Law becomes the determining factor once again, people will cease living as alienated individuals and become part of a living community. They will become masters of their own destiny instead of cogs in a giant State machine.

Society will not "need" Big Brother spy cameras and heavily armed cops to "protect" it. Quite simply the needs and temptations for crime will be fewer, and people who control their own lives and who are empowered to defend their own families and communities will be perfectly capable of dealing with whatever crime remains.

JUST as the police force will always do whatever is necessary to protect the corrupt Establishment that it serves, so the Establishment will do whatever is necessary to protect its police.

It is no accident that the mass police manslaughter at the Hillsborough football ground occurred in South Yorkshire. And it is no accident that the government went out of its way to protect its guilty hirelings. Why? Because the force in South Yorkshire has proved its worth to an increasingly repressive State on several occasions and has become far more brutalised than most of the rest of the system's "Thin Blue Line."

Long-standing NF activists will remember that it was the same police force, under the same commanding officer, which falsely imprisoned, hijacked and then attacked an entire coach and car convey of our people who intended to protest against a provocative pro-IRA march in Wakefield in 1984.

PSYCHOTIC BEHAVIOUR

The same tactic, and much more violence, including the terrorising of whole villages, was used a few months later against miners and their families during the long pit strike. No-one who saw the psychotic behaviour of South Yorkshire's finest during that dispute will be surprised at what happened at the Hillsborough ground.

As Britain slides towards social and racial anarchy, the response of our masters has not been to alter their policies which are the cause of the trouble. Instead, they have encouraged the police to arm themselves with evermore brutal, intimidating and lethal weapons to repress any and every protest and outbreak of disorder that results.

NEW POLICE STRATEGY

On the very day after the Sheffield football disaster, the Sunday Times carried an article about the new secret riot strategy drawn up by the Association of Chief Police Officers. This revealed that the police intend to deal with future street unrest by using much more aggressive tactics where specially trained arrest squads charge into crowds to "nip riots in the bud."

Training for such operations is already underway. It is symptomatic of the way in which police officers are trained to view the public as the enemy. "Baton charge first, ask questions later", is what they are being taught to do. And that is exactly what the police did at the Sheffield Wednesday football ground on Saturday 15th April.

And of course, such police aggression will not stop the rise in violence afflicting our sick society. It will merely encourage the growth of hit and run attacks on small groups of police rather than painful confrontations with larger numbers of them. And as the police, in turn, "tool up" even more it will lead to the replacement of inner city riots by inner city terrorism.

"When they kick at your front door, how you gonna come, with your hands on your head, or on the trigger of your gun?" (The Clash - 1979). Violence breeds violence.

USING THE MEDIA

FED UP WITH BUSH

I FOR one am fed up with George Bush being paraded before us as the new "leader" of the so-called free world, simply because he is President elect of the USA.

Well, I did not vote for Mr Bush, and in no way consider him leader of anything I, or my nation, belongs to.

If the USA does dominate the West it is because the European nations are too scared to stand up to the Empire of the Hambruger, in its bid to make the world safe for "democracy" and General Motors. — (Full name and address supplied).

Brain drain Euro threat

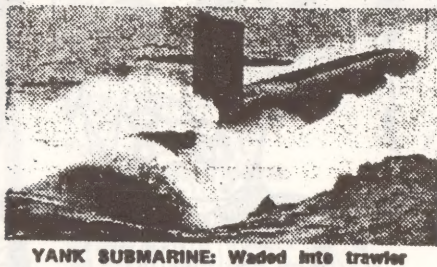

● IT SEEMS one of the "benefits" of the E.E.C. and the single European market of 1992 will be a massive exodus of British talent.

According to Professor Peter Herriot, head of occupational psychology at Birkbeck College, many skilled workers will leave the country to work abroad:

"Designers to Dusseldorf, physicists to Freiburg, computing scientists to Cologne, engineers to Essen and mathematicians to Milan."

Such a brain drain will only make worse the present problem in the U.K. of skill shortages and a falling domestic birth-rate. Many other critics of the E.E.C. have also pointed out a single European market will result in industry gradually shifting to the "efficient" centre of the continent. —

Throw Yanks out of Scotland

YANK SUBMARINE: Waded into trawler

AFTER yet another incident involving American submarines is it not time we kicked the Yanks out of Scotland?

I am sick of Britain being ordered about by our so-called allies.

It's about time the British Government stood up and told the Whitehouse we are not a US satellite state.

We are not an American army base and our countryside is not for sale to be raped by Yank-built military installations.

Costs of Poll Tax

No wonder the new Poll Tax is increasingly unpopular; the cost of introducing it in Manchester will be £3m.!

Not only that, but 450 extra staff will have to be drafted in to administer complex rules; seven floors of offices of the council will have to be released for poll tax staff.

There must be a better alternative?

THE "British" government deliberately creates an atmosphere of razzamatazz whenever a privatisation swindle is in the offing. Such superficial hype can never hide a basic fact: there is an increasing foreign stake in British industry. It seems that the French are going to purchase a large slice of the water supply system, when it is privatised. It is probable that almost a third of the shares in concern that have been sold off to private investors will be owned by people outside the UK. When foreign shares in companies where the majority shareholding is still British are taken into account, this figure could rise to 40 per cent. We must buy back our industry and prohibit foreign ownership by law.

Another blow to industry

● THE NEWS last month of the closure of North East Shipbuilders in Sunderland is yet another blow to industry in the U.K. Yet this sad episode could have been avoided.

The Government claims that no suitable buyer was prepared to bid for N.E.S. when it was put up for sale, and that the British taxpayer could not continue to subsidize them. Yet, these claims are flawed; Britain has been importing ships on a large scale over past years from other countries, like South Korea, which heavily subsidize their own shipbuilding. This enables them to undercut their competitors; often they refuse to allow foreign firms to compete in their own home market.

So, due to weakness on the part of our "British" government, 2,400 jobs will vanish; probably another 2,000 will also be lost in associated ancillary industries.

If only we had introduced policies of protection and economic nationalism; Japan has demonstrated that such ideas can work. —

EEC: bloated nation-wreckers

Sir, — How many readers of the Observer still believe that the U.K. should still remain in the EEC? Just consider the damage being done to our own nation and other states in Europe.

The amount of food destroyed by the Common Market rose last year to 2.9 million tonnes, at a huge cost to the taxpayer. Why do we not give this wasted cash to the NHS instead?

Steak and roast beef may go up by 15 per cent because of new EEC farm proposals. Normally price increases on beef amount to less than ten pence on an average 3lb. roasting joint; under the new policy the difference could be £1.11 on the same joint. Why should we tolerate this?

The EEC has issued a request to many local councils to remove the Union Jack flag from town halls and replace it with the Euro-flag (a circle of 12 gold stars on a blue background). Who do these people think they are?

1989 is the year for the next European elections. I for one will be abstaining from this vote and boycotting the bloated nation-wreckers; such a patriotic gesture will undermine the authority and credibility of the EEC

No going back

Afted decades of centralized oppression from Moscow, nationalist uprisings should surprise nobody; witness the latest disturbances in the U.S.S.R.

The attempts by Georgian patriots to regain freedom follows close on the heels of other pro-independence campaigns in Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia. Trouble is also looming in the Ukraine. The demands are always the same: economic and political and social liberty. Glasnost has opened the floodgates and there is no going back.

Yet, if they do win their freedom what political path will they tread? Marxist internationalism has proven a total non-starter; but liberal democracy and economics is no option either for a nation trying to preserve its identity. Just look at Wales!

Thankfully there is a host of alternative ideas to the conventional failures of both left and right: the "small is beautiful" thinking of E.F. Schumacher; the Green ideas from The Other Economic Summit; the Social Credit philosophy of Major C.H. Douglas; the Distributist concepts of G.K. Chesterton and Hilaire Belloc, or any other Third Way schemes.

Nationalist and regionalist demands are increasing across Europe, both East and West. We would be foolish not to support them.

THE fact that ideas will only be supported if people get to know about them should be evident enough, but it is something that many of our units seem to have overlooked in its most basic form. Whilst the importance of concentrating on building our own counter-media cannot be overstressed, comrades should remember that it is a long and slow process which mainly involves preaching to the converted. The problem remains that we have to create an interest in our ideas amongst the public before we are faced with the heartening prospect of potential converts to the national revolutionary struggle. Too few units are involving themselves seriously in Community Action initiatives and in these areas the Movement remains tarnished with the negative image created for us by our opponents and the major shortcomings of the pre-1986 NF. That is, if the Movement is known to exist at all. In those areas where serious community campaigns and a high profile have been maintained over a period of time we are becoming, or have become already, an accepted and respected feature of community life. It is only under such circumstances that we can expect to progress substantially.

And too few units are taking our message to their communities by exploiting the letters columns of their local press. It is not so much that papers have an editorial policy of refusing to give the Movement coverage, although it does exist to some extent. Rather, it is that the Movement, through its units, is not making itself newsworthy and viewworthy. It must become a regular feature of unit work to bombard local and regional papers with news of local NF activity and campaigns, letters stating our position and views on every conceivable subject and comment upon the political and social happenings in their localities. Exploiting the local letters columns is also something that can be done by individuals in order to create a climate for our ideas. The letters reproduced below are a good example of this tactic. One was written by an NFN Supporter in Glasgow, the rest by a FOM from southern England to a number of different papers in his area. Such "small politics" is not an optional extra to be undertaken or disregarded at will, but the first tentative steps to building a community base. So let's get to work!

KHOMEINI

THE world rejoiced at the beginning of June with the announcement of the death of Ayatollah Khomeini, leader of the Iranian revolution.

All rejoiced except for the Iranian people and those involved in the global struggle against the domination of the world by Marxism and Capital, and the attempt to build the One World State - the Kingdom of the Son of Perdition.

Khomeini's regime swept to power ten years ago on the crest of a popular revolution against the Pahlavi dynasty, the willing servant and plaything of the United States - the Great Satan.

Although, steadfastly opposed to the existence and spread of atheist Marxism, Khomeini and his government correctly recognised that it was liberalism that was the greater enemy. Communism took pleasure in proclaiming its hatred of God; liberalism was seen to be far more formidable because of its insidious nature.

One of the first tasks that the revolutionary administration of Iran undertook was to eradicate not only the scourge of Capitalism, Marxism and foreign subversion from within its borders, but to attack the root of evil as far as the Mullahs could. Freemasonry was annihilated quickly and effectively.

It was this policy that brought the wrath of the world upon the Revolutionary Republic of Iran. Had they merely cleansed their country of Marxist influence and regained their sovereignty from the parasitical actions of Capitalism, the Iranian revolution would have become acceptable in the eyes of the world after suffering the usual condemnations.

And so it came to pass that the world declared war upon Khomeini, his government and people. Unfortunately, we do not have space in this short appreciation to put this largely undeclared war into perspective nor list some of the great achievements of the Iranian administration. We recommend readers to Nationalism Today, issue 45, where a brief two page assessment can be found.

For ten years Ayatollah Khomeini took to the world stage and helped to stem the advance of the organized forces of iniquity. We pray that, in His infinite mercy, Khomeini's struggle will be of good account in the Divine Judgement.

THE FRONT LINE

THE LESSONS OF VAUXHALL

THE National Front vote at the Vauxhall by-election was not a good one. Even when one allows for the 83 votes stolen from us by the bogus NF candidate, our vote would have just been enough to see off the challenge mounted by the Revolutionary Communist Party and by one of the two Black independents.

Clearly a lot of work has still to be done.

One of the most obvious reasons for our failure to achieve a more significant result in terms of actual votes was the apparent "newness" of our separatist policies, and the fact that as a consequence many of our potential voters, particularly among the Black community, may not have trusted us entirely. Persistence can be the only remedy for this; persistence not necessarily in the electoral field, but also through other channels of communication.

The virtual media blackout did not help, but calm reflection rather than indignation must be our response. The media will give extensive coverage to the Establishment's candidates and negligible coverage to others who it sees as interlopers abusing the "democratic" electoral system by having the audacity to stand for election at all. The obvious conclusion which such an attitude brings us is that we need desperately to build our own media, as well as confirming to us the correctness of our view that the masses will be permitted no electoral road to power.

From an organizational point of view standing in the Vauxhall by-election brought several benefits for the Movement that we have not mentioned yet.

The election campaign allowed us not only to train activists in a practical way in electoral procedure, but it gave us the opportunity to experiment in how we present ourselves to the public in written word and appearance. This was highlighted most startlingly at the television coverage of the election count in Lambeth Town Hall. Viewers could not have helped but be impressed by the pictures of rows of smart, but tough, looking cadres acting as a unified body throughout the proceedings. And our experiments in advertising culminated in the Movement's national phone number being flashed across TV screens every few seconds, emblazoned in large letters upon specially produced T-Shirts worn for the occasion. Without a doubt this free advertising contributed to the large numbers of enquiries received shortly after the election from both within the constituency and further afield.

New contacts were made, paper sales added to our regular rounds in the area, new NF Supporters and FOM's to strengthen our Lambeth unit, a pleasing financial response to the campaign at extremely short notice and a message that has shocked tens of thousands of people into thinking about more important matters than the latest bit of gossip, East Enders and the pools.

So should we fight future elections?

It must be our guiding principle that each individual election must be considered on its merits. The need to give people the right message, or to prevent them from receiving the wrong message in our name, will always be a consideration. Intelligent strategic analysis must be the basis for deciding whether to contest elections in the future, but the experience of Vauxhall must also teach us the primary importance of grass roots, non-electoral community activism.

If the media will not permit our voice to be heard then our actions, between rather than simply during elections, must be such as to speak louder than their words.

DONATIONS RECEIVED FOR THE ELECTORAL CAMPAIGN

AS many of our readers will be aware, the Vauxhall by-election was called at very short notice and left us with only a two week period to appeal for and organize donations so that we achieved the £1,500 target needed to fight the campaign. And we are pleased to report that the quick response from NF members and supporters not only meant that we achieved this target, but surpassed it. So far a total of £1,771.50 has been received and we would like to thank the following nationalists who made the campaign financially possible.

Separation is the aim of all those who love their racial and cultural heritage. The campaign in Vauxhall allowed the Movement to spread the message of Separation, mutual respect and a rejection of race hate to the uninformed, the good willed and Black activists in the area.

BIGOTS BEATEN BY LOONY PARTY IN VAUXHALL....

FOR some time the bigots of the Flag group have contested elections under the name of the National Front. Despite a series of embarrassing results, including their defeat at the hands of the rival British National Party at Greenwich, they have been free to disseminate their crude racist propaganda in the form of election addresses and letters to newspapers. Their negative bigotry has of course served a very useful purpose for the Establishment, as it has allowed the latter to cloud the waters by falsely associating such views with us.

But Vauxhall brought this little game to an end. Both the Establishment and its reactionary allies were horrified when they heard that the National Front were to stand in the constituency. Despite the fact that they could still reasonably expect to trick a number of our supporters into voting for them, it became clear to this loathsome little grouping that its lies were about to be exposed.

The Flag group, it must be said, had a number of advantages over us with regard to our respective campaigns. Firstly, its members are far more election orientated than ours, adhering rigidly as they do to the old Websterite march-elections strategy of the seventies. The last parliamentary election that the NF had fought had been the General Election of 1983, in which many of our members had not been involved.

Secondly, the Flag group had decided to fight Vauxhall some time in advance, and had therefore had more time to accumulate resources and discuss strategy. In addition, the racist candidate, Fred Budden, was listed above our candidate on the ballot paper, and could therefore expect to collect the votes of those unaware that he was a fraud, and that there was an authentic NF candidate listed further down the ballot paper.

It was particularly important for the Flag leadership that Budden should beat us convincingly as it had constantly kept its actual membership in ignorance about the NF, telling them that we "only have 20 members", that we are "in league with the IRA", that we are "left-wing" and "mad". Such an organization could surely pose little threat to the thousands-strong, thoroughly British, Queen and Country multitudes of the Flag, could it?

Well, one would have thought not, but we trounced them nevertheless. Whilst our vote was expectedly poor, theirs was laughable, being beaten into twelfth place some considerable way behind the Monster Raving Loony Mad Hatters Party. This, mind you, for a party that argues the case for an electoral road to power, and one which has publicly predicted that it will replace the Liberal Democrats as Britain's third party by the end of 1989!

The whole strategy of the Flag group has been based on deceit. In every election which they have fought they have stooped so low even as to try and deceive their own voters, by claiming to be something that they are not. In Vauxhall they managed to deceive 83 people, but over half that number again were able to see through their lies. It must by now be clear to even the dimmest of their supporters that they will never again be able to collect more than a fraction of the NF vote whenever they contest an election. It must be clear also that, faced with the choice, more voters will opt for our positive, revolutionary creed of nationalism than for their sick platform of irrational hatred.

The Flag group is condemned to die, and soon. Whenever in the future it tries to pass itself off as the National Front at an election it will be exposed. But its leaders dare not take the obvious course and set up under a new name - its own name - for its members are too fickle, too sentimental, and in many cases too stupid to accept such a move. It will not - even cannot - reappraise its attitude towards fighting elections.

And so Britain's third party in waiting is doomed to continue down the slippery slope towards oblivion. It is destined to be beaten by the Loony Party whenever the two meet again in electoral combat. What a fitting end for a "party" that keeps its members in the dark and which lies to its own voters!

... AND FLAGELLATED IN EURO-ELECTIONS

EVEN when the National Front is not standing in opposition to the bogus Flag collective the latter's candidates continue to embarrass themselves at the polls.

Martin Wingfield's 1,471 votes in Birmingham East may appear impressive until one considers that this Euro-constituency is made up of no less than eight parliamentary constituencies, and that his vote, therefore, constituted less than one per cent of the poll. And this in a seat which only six candidates were contesting.

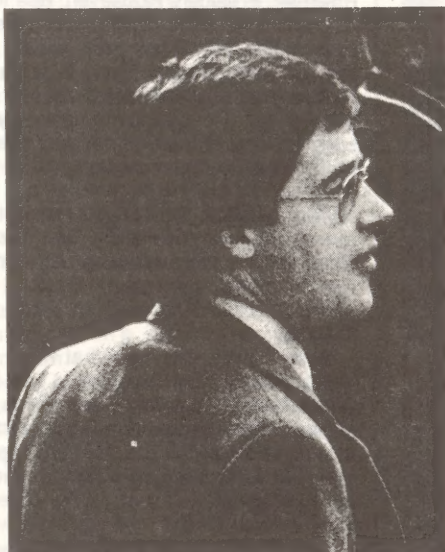

Certain comparisons with other constituencies serve to put Wingfield's vote into some kind of perspective. In Devon, for instance, the Loony Party candidate attracted 2,241 votes, whilst in the tiny constituency of London Central the combined vote of the Loony Party and the Corrective Party - led by Lindi St. Claire, affectionately known to her clients as "Miss Whiplash" - was 1,541. In other words British voters on the whole, perhaps not unreasonably, would prefer to be represented by an alliance of lunatics and ex-prostitutes than by one of thieves, liars, police spies and race hate bigots.

Of course, had we contested seats in the Euro-elections, we too may have suffered humiliation. But then we are not stupid enough to treat elections as an essential part of our strategy, nor would we have had the effrontery to try and con £4,000 out of our supporters with promises of overnight success and saved deposits.

It is reported that Flag chief Wingfield - "the bonking bookie" - is taking odds on the outcome of the next by-election which his little group decides to contest. Present prices are as follows:

- 33/1 Chairman to have the courage to stand for election himself.
- 10/1 To beat Loony Party.
- 6/1 To beat Miss Whiplash.
- 2/1 Less than six people arrested during campaign.
- Ev. Membership stupid enough to slip with money for deposit again.
- 4/5 Deposit raised but Chairman slips off with it.
- 2/5 Organization to fold up before he gets the opportunity.

SPOT THE LOONY!

Wingfield.....whipped in Euro-elections.

Budden.....humiliated at Vauxhall.

ARMING THE PEOPLE

THE case for the NF call to "Arm the People" received an unexpected boost in Ulster recently. Two IRA thugs running away after trying to murder an off-duty - i.e. unarmed - UDR man found that their stolen getaway car broke down. They promptly abandoned the vehicle and burst into a nearby farmyard, threatening to kill anyone who attempted to stop them stealing a motorbike. Only too late did they discover that the farmer possessed a shot-gun - more than a match for the handguns normally used by the death squads in Ulster.

Within seconds, one of the fearless duo had received a dose of his own medicine and lay seriously injured, while his still armed companion legged it across a nearby field.

This kind of incident is, sadly, a rare occurrence in Ulster, as the issuing of shotgun licences to law-abiding citizens is even more restricted than on the mainland. And the inevitable result of criminalising firearms in this way is that only criminals will end up with them.

So the IRA and similar organizations can strike at will, knowing that many soldiers have to patrol with blank rounds in their rifles, that off-duty UDR men are not allowed to carry a weapon for self-defence, that women members of the security forces are unarmed, and that the general population are also defenceless, waiting to be bullied, threatened and terrorised at any time.

STANDARD RIFLE

But imagine the situation if every responsible adult citizen owned, by right of their participation in a citizen militia, a modern standard rifle at home. The whole of Ulster would become as dangerous for terrorists as that farmer's backyard. They could still catch a target by surprise, but they would know that his neighbours would be ready in seconds to end their antics for good.

Improper use of such legally held weapons would, of course, be covered by strict laws just as is the case in Switzerland, which uses this system, or as is done with shotguns held under licence on the mainland, and would naturally carry an appropriate penalty. Their use for sectarian killings, in particular, would carry a mandatory death sentence.

But proper use of these rifles in defence of Ulster's people, peace and national identity would be a matter of patriotic duty. And it would rapidly bring to an end the nasty little imperialist war against Ulster being carried out by the forces of armed republicanism and Marxism.

CITIZEN ARMY

But we shall leave the last word on the concept of arming the people to the Welsh nationalist, Derrick Hearne, from his classic collection of essays, The ABC of the Welsh Revolution.

"We have promised ordinary people these last 50 years that they would be taken into active partnership in the workplace and in government. It follows, therefore, that when a worker is handed a share certificate in his company, under the worker share participation scheme, he is handed a rifle at the same time.

"We are building a new sort of society here in Wales. Nationalism is offering genuine democracy, but its people must be prepared to defend what they have won.

"A regime cannot bestow any greater compliment upon its people than to trust them with arms. It is a mark of a united, vigorous society. As long as each miner or steelworker knows that he has a weapon in the rifle locker at work, he feels that he is a free man.

"If we nationalists say that we are genuine democrats, in work and in government, but yet appear to deny the means of defending the advances of Welsh democracy to those who are supposed to benefit from them, then our claims ring false. Nationalists will one day hold the reigns of power in Wales. They will ask great sacrifices of our people for a whole generation, to begin to put right the neglect of 700 years of conquest and exploitation. You have to be very sure of your people to do that. Your people have to be very sure of their government. A rifle in the cupboard will bind people to government and government to people as fair words will not. It is the ultimate guarantor of peoples' rule.

"A citizen army, then, in our view, is the cement which binds Welsh society together. It is the guarantee of freedom without and sobriety within."

A UNIVERSAL CREED

READERS will have received something of a shock when they opened page 2 of this issue and glanced at our regular "Where we Stand" column. Inevitably, every newspaper suffers from typesetting errors in its text and we are no exception, but before you put pen to paper in order to complain about the the standard in this issue we would like to explain that this issue's column is written in Swedish and our computerised 'setting facilities have not gone haywire.

The political creed of the Third Position is universal in its appeal and naturally we wish to encourage its growth in other nations as well as our own family. And because NF News is widely read in many European countries we have decided that occasionally we will publicise our principles in other languages so that they can be more easily digested by our foreign comrades. They, in turn, will be able to create interest in national revolutionary ideas amongst their countrymen through NF News where no Third Way organization or bulletin currently exists.

MOVING BACKWARDS

Dear Sir,

The reactionary Flag/Vanguard are on the move, folks! According to the Flag for February: "1889 is going to be the year that the National Front (sic) emerges as a major political force in Britain." 1889 eh? Well that proves they are reactionaries. Perhaps someone ought to tell them they are not the National Front either...

Yours sincerely,
G.K., Gosport, Hants.

COUNTER CULTURE

Dear NF News

I think the new name for the White Noise Club is awful. "Counter Culture" is the most uninteresting, boring name you could drag up. It has awful maths and science suggestions. And it has no street cred at all.

Here's an idea for a name: "The White Planet Club" or something similar. A much better name.

There is a white planet, made from a silvery substance, in the outer reaches of the galaxy. And it, of course, has influences over earth. A suitable name would help us tune into these important influences.

Slammer, Nordkist Zine, Sweden.

EXPOSING "THE GREAT CRUSADE"

Dear National Front News,

One of the facts that all Europeans must deal with is the current Superpower domination of their homelands. For this reason it is perhaps easier for Europeans, as opposed to Americans, to look at the post-war world in much more objective, and hence, realistic terms. In the US the insipid myth of World War II and its legacy as a "great crusade" looms as large as ever. As a history major, and a nationalist, I see the exposure of this myth as vital to challenging the present post-war system. For Western Europe, WW II has become the raison d'être of US occupation and imperialism. Likewise it is used to justify the tyranny of the USSR over Eastern Europe.

Very few modern works have dared to challenge the media image of that horrible conflict. One exception is A.J.P. Taylor's famous, Origins of the Second World War. In that work Taylor clearly reveals that all of the major pre-war powers were more than happy to sacrifice small nations in order to maintain the status-quo. And we see this practise continues to the present day.

The 'true legacy of World War II is not "liberation" but total war, concentration camps, strategic bombing and mass slaughter of civilians. Both the Axis and the Allies alike used whatever means they felt "necessary" to ensure victory. From a purely pragmatic view, it is worth mentioning that many experts have seriously questioned the value of such things as strategic bombing and "Unconditional Surrender". Both are now seen as having been extremely costly, both in terms of human and material resources, and also having prolonged the conflict. The fact is that the Allies, as much as the Axis, portrayed WW II as Total War in order to ensure total domination - not only politically and economically, but also socially and psychologically.

Liberals and conservatives, of course, call upon WW II to justify their present immoral and oppressive policies. For conservatives, the real goal was to secure trade and military interests. They cared less who won - keeping in mind that Wall Street helped finance Hitler up to 1939. What they really wanted was to ensure that they were on the winning side. For the liberal the goal was the One World State; to uphold "democracy" even if it meant employing the techniques of fascism to do so. Liberal and conservative alike are eager to deplore the atrocities committed by one side, but are just as quick to excuse or turn a blind eye, to the equally despicable horrors committed by the other. No wonder that some of the Allied participants in the Nuremberg Trials later came forth to admit that the whole thing was an incredible farce. There was, and is, a clear lack of real morality, unless one believes in the sort of relativistic "morality" utilized by the victors.

SCOTLAND IGNORED BY THE NF DIRECTORATE

Dear Sir,

Since the split with the reactionary element in 1986, I would applaud the National Front's new position on the question of race, i.e. White racial pride but co-operation with nationalists of other races who wish to preserve their own racial identity and culture. However, I feel more emphasis on the racial issue has got to appear in NFN, our street paper.

Furthermore, I would like to see more features and articles concerning our ideology, e.g. Europe, Back to the Land, and larger features on things like American imperialism, Marxism, corruption of the system, as opposed to the smaller articles in the Home Affairs and World Affairs section of NFN.

It seems that the National Front Directorate has tended to ignore Scotland. Scotland has suffered great hardship under Thatcher and the Westminster regime. Many people object to the presence of U.S. bases on our soil. Scotland has always been one of the most proud and nationalistic of the British Family of Nations. Our strong ties with Ulster and the desire for some form of Independence amongst my people, present the National Front with a very promising situation.

The Scottish National Party in its beliefs and actions is similar to the Welsh Plaid Cymru. It has never defined "nationalism" and calls for "independence within the European Community." The British National Party are quite strong in Scotland but I would not waste my time getting involved with them.

Don't ignore the situation in Scotland. The youth of the nation will rise to the call of National Revolution.

It is over one year since I was introduced to the National Front's message of Racial Pride, National Freedom and Social Justice. Our struggle for national revival must succeed or all is lost.

Victory is our Destiny,
J.L., Paisley, Scotland.

EDITORIAL REPLY

We agree that not enough attention is paid to Scotland at the moment, not because we deem Scotland to be of no worth, but because of the limitations imposed upon us by lack of spare manpower, finances and so on. At the moment the Directorate's efforts, through NFN, are centred upon Wales as they were upon Ulster beforehand. Both of these nations, as with Scotland, possess special problems and revolutionary potential for the Movement to capitalise upon, but this can only be done with any hope of success when the local infrastructure has been built up sufficiently to take advantage of this situation. This was the case in Ulster and they are now producing their own regular streetpaper and are more than capable of standing on their own two feet. It was the case in Wales, and our comrades there have reached the stage where they are producing a Welsh bulletin, which will progress to a publication similar to Ulster Nation. When they reach that stage they will not need to rely upon NFN.

But it is not yet the case in Scotland and before such a stage is reached we need a solid and highly active foundation from which to build. This foundation is being formed but needs to grow further. Regular leaflets need to be produced and distributed in target areas to establish a presence and base of support in communities. Door to door paper rounds have to be built up, leafleting and papersales need to be conducted in virgin territory to establish contacts, cells and future units, community action initiatives need to be maintained and built upon, the media needs to be utilized for our advantage and so on. The name of the Movement needs to be constantly in people's minds and on their tongues because of our ideas, our activities and because we're in their midst. And the only way that this is going to come about is through the hard work and dedication of Scots comrades.

Yes, we do need to cover Scotland more in NFN and we would like to see articles covering specific problems in Scotland, activities and so on. But again, these can only come from our comrades north of the border, so we look forward to receiving them and being able to give Scotland more coverage in future.

The Red Beast became part of Europe's legacy from World War II. Soviet tanks and troops are met in Prague with defiance and blood-stained national flags.

A parallel to the argument used to justify Allied conduct in WW II is the "justification" of Stalin's dictatorship. How many history books tell us of the Soviet's murder of over 10,000,000 people in the collectivization and purges of the 1930's, and then go on to state that Stalin's ruthless industrialization saved the USSR in WW II? As if this were consolation to his many victims. There can be no denying that Stalin's programs did secure the well-being of the Soviet state. But the nationalist sees that in this case neither the means nor the ends were justified!

Clearly it is not our view that "the Axis should have won." Personally, I disagree with many revisionists who seem intent on re-fighting the Second World War. We view the Axis/Allies struggle in much the same terms as we do the USA v. USSR. Perhaps conditions were/are slightly better under one system than another, but slavery remains slavery.

The irony of the WW II myth, as it stands in America, is that nowhere was isolationist sentiment stronger, right up until 1941, than in this country. Most Americans were content to see the great dictators, Hitler and Stalin, slug it out to the end. With the exception of a minority of Zionist, liberal and Capitalist interests, the American people had no desire to enter what they saw as another European war; which they viewed as being fought, like the last one, ostensibly to protect the British Empire. (Little did they know that Britain would lose her Empire, thanks to Churchill, and that the US would emerge as the leader of the "West"). However, President Roosevelt, due to Churchill's constant urging, was eager to enter the fray at any cost. Joining the war came first; justifying it was a process that took the rest of the war to work out. (Documentation strongly suggests that Roosevelt not only knew of the Pearl Harbour raid before it occurred, but that he engineered a conflict between the US and Japan over interests in the Pacific. See The Final Secret of Pearl Harbour, by Adm. R.A. Theobald, and Infamy: Pearl Harbour and its Aftermath, by John Toland).

Nevertheless, it is clear that with new generations of Europeans, WW II will come more and more to be seen as was WW I - a catastrophic conflict in which both Allied and Axis powers were out for self-aggrandizement and in which peoples on every side suffered immensely.

Sincerely,
M.M., Third Way, Arlington, USA.

THE FRONT LINE

BECOME A FRIEND OF THE MOVEMENTIT'S THE LEAST
YOU CAN DO!

Three million of our children have been callously murdered over the past twenty years in an orgy of hatred known as induced abortion. This Holocaust of the Silent Scream has been presided over and protected by Tory and Labour administrations and was introduced to the civil law of these islands by a Social Democratic leader, David Steel. The Communist groups, the Greens and the far right all consent to this sickening genocide. There is no group in the political sphere who stands unequivocally on the side of the unborn - no group except the National Front. So join the Friends of the Movement today and help us in our sacred task of fighting for the children of tomorrow.

To become a member of this association it costs a mere £15 per year - in other words we are asking you to give less than 29 pence a week to help save our country. Surely it's the least you can do!

In return you will receive a FOM card, we will keep you updated with important developments and achievements in our work and you will gain the satisfaction of knowing that you are playing an important part in our struggle. Quite apart from allowing us to carry on with, and expand, our work, Friends of the Movement play the important role of acting as the eyes and ears of the Movement in the population.

I would like to become a Friend of the Movement and enclose a cheque/postal order for £15 in favour of Friends of the Movement.

VICTORY TO PALESTINE

The world media has given the Intifada much less prominence in recent months, but the struggle against Zionist imperialism continues. Campaign for Palestinian Rights is looking for more voluntary organizers to help with its important work. Movement cadres are invited to apply at once.

EUROPE WILL BE FREE!

MILITANTS from Blackpool used the recent Euro-Election to great effect by running a successful abstentionist campaign. Calling upon the population of the Fylde to boycott the elections in a specially produced leaflet, our comrades demonstrated that faced with a non-choice between the Socialist bureaucracy of the left and the Big Businessman's club of the right, the only real choice was not to vote at all!

"There is, however, a Third Way for Europe" the leaflet continued. "Nationalist movements throughout the continent will continue the fight for the building of alternative institutions. We must build a new Europe on the basis of these principles - co-operative economics, political decentralisation, popular participation in government and defence, and respect for the environment. Armed with these ideas we will take power and wealth out of the hands of the Marxist party bosses and the Tory corporation bosses, and give real power to the people."

The thought provoking leaflet was supplemented by a press statement sent out to local media which resulted in some useful publicity telling people that "the European parliament is simply a larger version of the Westminster Commons and is, therefore, an undemocratic, unrepresentative fraud." They went on to say that if the British peoples could not enforce their wishes through parliament, what chance did they have of doing so through an even more distant, internationalist structure?

After calling upon people to show their disapproval of the present direction of European politics our comrades went on to state our own position.

The EEC always was a product of the 'bigger is better' growth centred mentality which has done so much to destroy the diverse cultures and the natural and man-made environment of Europe. The Eurocrats implicitly recognise this process of Americanisation in their term 'United States of Europe'.

We totally reject the division of Europe and the political, military and economic expressions of that division - NATO, EEC, WARSAW PACT and COMECON.

We reject the domination of EEC politics by the sterile politics of the nineteenth century - the Socialist bureaucracy of the Left and the Big Businessman's club of the Right

Instead of taking part in Euro-Elections the Front will follow a positive strategy:-

The solution to the problem of the unrepresentative nature of parliament is to decentralise our institutions. To this end we will encourage the growth of locally based delegated Community Councils.

The best way to rebuild our regional economies, whilst at the same time preserving local cultures and protecting the environment, is to encourage the growth of worker co-operatives, family farms and craft workshops. We will advise our supporters throughout Europe to take part in these initiatives at every opportunity.

The recent crisis in NATO and the ongoing implosion of the Communist bloc presents a new opportunity for the forces of European liberation. We will join our comrades in other nationalist movements in sending the following message:-

SUPERPOWERS GET OUT OF EUROPE!

We will use our contacts in Europe and in East-European emigre circles to promote at all times the politics of the Third Position. Co-operative economics, political decentralisation, popular participation in government and defence, and respect for the environment are the building blocks of European regeneration.

AGAINST THE EEC - FOR A FREE EUROPE

Movement activists from Suffolk campaign against the presence of US troops and missiles in the area. The occupation and division of Europe by the superpowers must be condemned and resisted at every opportunity.

Remember the Cause in your Will

We wish our readers and supporters a long and healthy life, but for all of us the time for departure must eventually come. We feel that everyone will wish, when this time does arrive, to leave something behind that will help to carry on the struggle.

You can help the Cause when you are gone by making provision in your Will for those who will be doing the fighting after you. You can do this by bequeathing money to the National Front. Make sure you remember the National Front when you make out your Will. If you have already written your Will add a codicil for the benefit of the Movement. If you are unsure about any of the legal technicalities in arranging this, please do not hesitate to contact our Legal Department or see your own solicitor and he or she will advise. A short time ago the National Front benefitted from a substantial amount of money left to it by a deceased supporter. You too can help in this way. Can you think of a better way to go?

PRINCIPLES OF NATIONALISM

THE NATIONAL FRONT refuses to blame Meibion Glyndwr for the holiday home arson campaign. The blame rests squarely upon the shoulders of those who have created the desperate situation in Wales, rather than with those who have been driven by it to take such drastic action in defence of their country and community.

But equally, while we respect Meibion Glyndwr's courage and sincerity and are aware that they possess a great deal of support in Wales, we are not prepared to pretend that we approve of their methods.

There are cases when the use of violence for political ends is justified. If a repressive State - one that does not uphold the Moral Law - leaves no peaceful outlet for dissident struggle, if there is not even the possibility of a cultural, social or economic opposition to the System to give hope of long term victory, then the State invites a violent reaction.

And if a State combats political, economic or cultural dissent by launching brutal physical attacks on entire communities, then the activists in those communities have a duty to lead physical resistance in community self-defence.

TERRORISM ABHORENT

Where they truly exist, such circumstances are legitimate reasons for direct action and armed struggle against the forces of State repression.

Where these particular situations do not exist such action must be resisted however unbearable the provocation seems.

Terrorism is abhorrent and is never justifiable under any circumstances.

So there are some parts of the world today where politically directed force is justifiable. The Mujahideen struggle in Afghanistan against the Soviet occupation was an obvious example. Less well publicised, but equally valid, are the last ditch attempts of South and Central American Indians and peasants to protect their communities and environment from destruction by the insatiable greed of multi-national corporations and the genocidal policies of the States they are deemed to live under. So too are the riots and arson attacks directed by native Tibetans against the genocidal Red Chinese occupation of their land and the recent food riots in Argentina.

But the general situation in any part of the British Isles does not make political violence legitimate.

The British State does have a long and continuing history of attempted cultural genocide in Wales (and in each of the British Family of Nations). But Welsh communities are not under direct physical attack by the State. Welsh activists do have political and cultural outlets for their energies.

The fact that the useless sell-outs of Plaid Cymru stand in the way of effective political campaigning is a problem for Welsh militants to resolve, but not a reason for violence against anyone else or the futile destruction of property that could be taken over by homeless Welsh families.

OTHER ROADS

So we do not believe that Meibion Glyndwr's campaign is justified, for all other roads have not been exhausted. Schools can teach in Welsh; voluntary playgroups and adult classes can do the same; activists can make Welsh clubs, chapels and pubs vibrant centres of community life; cultural activity can be expressed in Welsh; Welsh co-ops can employ local people; corrupt councils could be replaced by elected delegates.

All these opportunities, and many more besides, mean that Wales has not yet reached the point at which political violence is morally justified. While the growth of the centralised Police State threatens to change the situation, we are certainly not there yet.

Along with the moral position there are also questions of tactics and ideology to be considered. Even if violence was morally justified it would be pointless unless it stood at least some chance of lasting success.

Does the Meibion Glyndwr campaign have such a chance? No!

The most likely end to it is in repression, prison and death - not only for the militants involved who readily accept such things if necessary - but for those around them as well. It would bring severe repression to families and communities.

While it continues, the campaign may keep house prices down in the areas affected, but that is not lasting success.

True, it might turn the rout of Welsh civilisation in rural Wales into a more orderly retreat. It could buy time, but what for?

Unless positive political, cultural and economic initiatives give "Welshness" the chance to go on the offensive, the nation is doomed.

IDEOLOGICAL OPPOSITION

But such initiatives can only work if they are understood, welcomed, and openly joined by large numbers of ordinary people. This brings us to the National Front's ideological reason for opposing the fire-bombings.

The concept of mass popular participation in government, the economy, culture and defence is central to the ideology of the Third Position.

If a majority of the population are not actively involved, then a nationalist victory, even if gained electorally, can only be a kind of coup d'etat, rather than a political and moral revolution. And such a coup can always be reversed. For the structure of the State has not changed, nor have the lives of the governed, nor do the hearts of the governors.

Just suppose that Meibion Glyndwr campaigners do escape detection; that they develop a positive and comprehensive programme, and that a wave of hostility to Westminster brought them to power in Wales. What then?

Meibion Glyndwr's origins and continuation as a secret elite would colour and corrupt everything. The victory would be theirs, not the peoples'. Ordinary Welsh folk would just be exchanging a remote and all-powerful elite in London for a slightly less remote but just as powerful (because secrecy, discipline and fanaticism create power) elite in, presumably, Machynlleth.

Would the fact that they are Welsh make it any better? Ask the homeless, jobless, rootless and powerless thronging England if the impeccable, so-called "Englishness" of most of the Cabinet helps them.

It may be that such a small and elitist government would do great things for Welsh civilisation and the Welsh people, for a time. But it would soon change. It is far easier and far more likely that one man or a small number of men will become corrupted than a majority of the population.

No, the morally directed political struggle must involve the entire people if it hopes to achieve lasting success. And large numbers of people can not be involved in the kind of secretive and elitist organization which is bound to develop with the use of illegitimate violence.

Cymru 1991? Illegitimate violence in defence of Wales will bring daily misery, hardship and fear to the community. The principles of nationalism must reflect the Moral Law.

This is why we believe that Meibion Glyndwr are on the wrong road. It is why the National Front's growing campaign against holiday homes - which is not a problem restricted to Wales alone - will be peaceful and will strive to involve ordinary people. This is why the National Front does not desire to seize power for itself, but aims to incite and educate the peoples of these islands to administer it, community by community, for themselves until the mechanisms of the State have been supplanted by those of Popular Rule.

We do not want to be ruled by an elite, nor do we wish to be an elite that rules. Rather, through moral and political education and struggle, we aim to turn the mass of people themselves into an elite who can administer their own affairs within the framework of society.
